My other senses would tell me everything I needed to know about the world around me and, I may not be as easily fooled as I am now, believing what I see, or believing my interpretation of what is presented before my eyes. I believe I would go insane without the other senses, having never been deprived of them and knowing their impact on my life.

Taste or gustation is one of the two main "chemical" senses.

There are at least four types of tastes that "buds" (receptors) on the tongue detect, and hence there are anatomists who argue[citation needed] that these constitute five or more different senses, given that each receptor conveys information to a slightly different region
